

Rose-Hulman Astronomy Club Meeting Minutes for 2008-05-08

Astronomy Fact of the Week

Scientists believe that the coldest body in the solar system is one of Neptune's moons, Triton, at an average temperature of -235 degrees Celsius.

- Next week is the end of the year party. It is a great opportunity to come get to know us if you haven't been coming to meetings. We will observe if the sky is clear.
- Jason will go shopping for the party next week and we will order pizzas the day of the party.
