Clabber Girl Billboard

The historic Clabber Girl Billboard that sits at the corner of Wabash and Hunt has been restored. When Rose-Hulman purchased the property, we set about working with the Clabber Girl Corporation to repair and restore the billboard to its former glory. This 80-year landmark was first erected by Tony Hulman, President of Hulman and Company, as part of their national advertising campaign for Clabber Girl baking powder. The sign was repainted by local Terre Haute artist, Becky Hochhalter, and there have also been repairs and repainting completed to the woodwork and clock. The repositioning of the clock and final coats of paint are scheduled as soon as the weather clears.
