How to read a scientific paper Compiled by Michael Wollowski and Jason Yoder No Does the title suggest you might On to next paper! be interested in the paper? Yes Read the abstract. The abstract scopes the paper and describes key contributions No Is the paper still of On to next paper! interest to you? Yes Read the first two paragraphs of the Read the conclusions. It summarizes the introduction. They describe in detail the quality of the results. exact nature of the contribution. No Is the paper still of On to next paper! interest to you? Yes Read the results/evaluation section. It gives detailed Read the first technical section. It gives detailed information about the work. information about the accomplishments. No Is the paper still of interest to you? Yes Read the portion of the introduction in which the Read the remainder of the paper authors explain how their work builds on that of others. Look for any interesting papers.